Quick Hits

Looking good. We're talking about our new business directory for 2019. The directories were distributed to most of the city – if not all – by the time you read this. We had a team of folks deliver them door-to-door.

The directory is a guide to all of our city businesses, which includes their addresses and phone numbers.

Every year we are impressed by the entrepreneurial spirit in this community. Hamtramck is packed with businesses.

Did we miss your business? As hard as we try, it's inevitable someone got left out. If so, give us a call at (313) 874-2100 or email us at:

In other news, here's a reminder.

Let the Paczki Day festivities begin: Hamtramck will be party city

By Charles Sercombe

This coming week the stars are aligning for Hamtramck.

Where, oh where, to start?

On Saturday (March 2), at 10 a.m., the annual 5K Paczki Run, hosted by Tour de Troit, kicks off the festive week.

There's an added attraction. Gov. Gretchen Whitmer will participate in the run. It's part of her pledge, according to a press release, to run 60K-worth in various runs throughout the state in one year.

Welcome to Hamtramck, governor, and come back soon.

After Saturday's run, she'll be down to 55K left to tackle.

A few thousand people show up for the run, which takes folks through the city's neighborhoods. The

Your guide to where the best paczki can be found

By Charles Sercombe

Where are the best paczki?

The short answer is, Hamtramck, of course.

Just follow the paczki scent to these locations:

The most well-known

Brothers Mario and Nick Lulgjuraj started up Maine Street Restaurant 20 years ago. The restaurant has remained a favorite for many local diners. Stop by and wish them a happy anniversary.

Maine Street celebrates 20 years of dishing up good food

By Charles Sercombe

While many restaurants have come and gone in Hamtramck in recent times, there has been one constant for the past 20 years.

Maine Street Restaurant, owned by brothers Nick and Mario Lulgjuraj, has withstood all sorts of food trends that have been plated up in Ham-tramck over the years.

Maine Street's appeal is that it specializes in comfort foods, featuring classic American dishes as well as Greek favorites.

What's their secret to success?

"Hard work," was the first thing that came to mind for Mario.

Poletown gets an extension

By Charles Sercombe

Hamtramck's financial picture brightened a little bit this past week.

But don't get your hopes too high.

Last week it was announced that GM won't shut down its Poletown Plant this coming June, and will continue production there for at least another seven months.

Why?

GM says it still needs to produce the Chevy Malibu and the Cadillac CT6 until at least January of 2020.

But the extension is deceiving.

According to Crain's Automotive News, GM still plans to shut down the plant after the extended run.

This could still be some good news for Hamtramck.

GM pays the city about $800,000 per year in lieu of property taxes. A small portion of the plant is located on the Hamtramck side of the Detroit border.

Let the Paczki Day festivities begin: Hamtramck will be party city

run starts on Jos. Campau, just south of Holbrook. It costs $40 to participate (be sure to sign up at 9 a.m.).

Spoiler alert: The weather on Saturday is supposed to be a mix of snow and sleet. However, bad weather has not stopped people from coming out in the past. In fact, it adds to the fun.

After the run, the fun moves inside a heated tent next to where the 5K run takes place, at the Hamtramck Town Center shopping strip at Jos. Campau and Hanley.

The tent party features a free sampling of local paczki and live polka music. And if we're lucky, Mayor Karen Majewski will be on hand to dazzle us with her folk-dancing skills.

(This is not fake news, folks. The mayor is an amazing dancer.)

After two days' rest, the party heats up on Tuesday (March 5) – Hamtramck's own holiday, Paczki Day.

What can we say at this point? You know the drill. The city's bakeries will be packed, starting the night before and then all through the day.

While you can buy paczki anywhere these days, there is only one place to get the real thing, and that's in Hamtramck.

Our bars will also be open early, to make this our own Mardi Gras party.

Most of the bars have live bands, and of course the city's favorite party band, The Polish Muslims, will once again play three venues through the day.

Note to fans: The Polish Muslims will not be kicking off the day at the New Dodge Lounge, and instead are relocating to Ant Hall on Caniff, next to the public library.

Some of the bars get pretty creative.

Over at the Motor City Sports Bar & Grill (9122 Jos. Campau) they are serving up a paczki burger. Yes, you read that right: It's a paczki split in two, with a burger in the middle.

You can make ours a cheeseburger, please, no Pepsi.

Over at Small's Bar (at the corner of Caniff and Conant), they invented a thing called a paczki bomb. As you might guess, it's filled with booze.

Now, that makes Jell-O shots look as lame as they are.

If you can stomach it, PLAV Post 10, located at 11824 Jos. Campau, will once again host a paczki eating contest. It starts at noon, and for a grueling 15 minutes you can watch a half dozen or so folks belly up and scarf down as many paczki as they can.

Be forewarned though: You can not unsee what you have once seen.

OK, so that takes care of Saturday and Tuesday.

The party continues once again, starting Thursday, with the return of the Hamtramck Music Fest.

As you may have read in last week's Review, there will be over 200 bands crammed into 24 venues.

We are talking cafes, halls, bars, shops, and even the Hamtramck Public Library.

Heck, who knows, maybe someone will open up their living room.

For a mere $15, you can get into all of these places all weekend long (March 7-9) and see a mind-blowing offering of bands, DJs, musicians, performance artists – you name it.

Our favorite thing to do is just wing it. Don't map out anything, just go place-to-place and see what turns up.

We will buy you a paczki burger if you are not impressed, thrilled, delighted – whatever – with what you experience.

We'll have more on this next week.

In the meantime, check out the festival's Facebook page for details, and the back page of this issue for their advertisement.

Get Out on the Hamtown!

Food assistance payments will be made earlier

By Alan Madlane

There is, for once, something of a bit of good news for Michigan food assistance recipients.

For the next two months after this, meaning March and April, the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services (MDHHS) will authorize early food benefits.

Specifically, March benefits will be paid between March 3-5, and April's between April 3-12. This is being done to counteract any possible issues recipients may have had due to the prior federal government shutdown.

The flip side of this coming boon is that May benefits will return to their normal schedule, which could therefore result in a longer-than-normal wait for some between April's early payout and that for May.

In a press release from the MDHHS, Terrence Beurer, Deputy Director of Field Operations Administration said: "We were concerned about families having to go 45 or 60 days or more without benefits as a result of the early issuance of February benefits."

He went on to add, "Gradually returning to the regular schedule cushions the impact of the federal government shutdown."

Maine Street celebrates 20 years of dishing up good food

He should know. He and his brother have worked in restaurants – mostly in Detroit’s famous Greektown – since they were in their teens.

Imagine going to high school all day and then working a shift at night.

And they still work long hours – up to 15 hours a day.

When they aren’t manning the grill or tending to the other jobs in the restaurant, they spend their extra time in the real estate arena. They have developed a number of commercial properties in the city – most notably turning an empty lot at Caniff and Gallagher into a thriving commercial hub.

After graduating from Hamtramck High School, the brothers pooled their money and took over the former Applebee’s where Maine Street is now.

They not only took it over, they also plowed money into the building by redesigning both the inside and outside.

The pair has also given back to the community. They help with fundraisers for the public schools, and even award a $2,500 scholarship each year to one of their employees who is still in school.

Pressed further on what tips they would share with would-be entrepreneurs, Mario said:

“You’ve got to be disciplined, never give up, and follow your dreams,” he said. “A lot of people dream, but you have to follow your dream.”

Of course, being in the restaurant business means interacting with the public – and we all know how fickle people can be.

Mario rolls with the punches.

“I enjoy serving people,” he said. “People come here, and they come to feel like family.”

Here’s to another 20 years of dishing up good food and good vibes.

(Maine Street is located at 11650 Jos. Campau. For those participating in this Saturday’s 5K Paczki Run, you can enjoy a 15-percent discount.)

That payment, however, is made only if the plant is in production. At the very least, the city could collect a good portion of that amount in its next fiscal year, which begins July 1.

City officials have been bracing for a major hit to the city's budget, and are looking at deep cuts to spending.

The Poletown Plant was one of five north American plants slated for closure this year.

In Our Opinion

Want to beat the winter blahs? Hamtramck has some remedies

All of us who love Hamtramck know why this is such a special city.

This weekend and next are perfect examples of why this city, despite all its ups and downs, is one of the metro area's favorite destinations.

This Saturday kicks off Tuesday's Paczki Day festivities with a 5K run, sponsored by Tour-de-Troit. The annual event, now in its seventh year, attracts thousands of participants – and we're not exaggerating.

Here's another added feature: Gov. Gretchen Whitmer will also be participating in the run. Come on out and welcome our newly-elected governor.

It's quite a sight to see folks running and walking through our neighborhoods, even if it means with putting up a little inconvenience in getting around town.

After the race, the party continues in a heated tent located in the Hamtramck Town Center parking lot on Jos. Campau and Holbrook. That's where you can get paczki and enjoy live polka music.

Tuesday, of course, is the big day, when the city's bars, service clubs and halls open their doors for all things Paczki-related. And by that, we mean live music, Polish dinners, and plenty of imbibing.

It's our version of Mardi Gras, and we accept no imitations.

After a couple days' rest, the party starts up again with the annual Hamtramck Music Fest, which starts on Thursday and winds up Saturday night.

You can read all the details in their ad in this week's issue.

This music festival also attracts thousands of fans during the week. There are very few cities in the area that could pull this off.

Thank goodness Hamtramck remains a walkable city, where one can easily get from one venue to another without having to rely on a car.

We are nearing the end of a grueling winter, and we could all use a shot of fun. Only here in Hamtramck can we find so many ways to beat the winter blahs.

Odds & Ends

Burning up... Last Saturday, the good folks over at Planet Ant decided to spice up the afternoon.

They set a guy on fire. Well, not just any guy. This was professional stunt guy, Schyuler White, dressed in a fire-proof suit, who was attempting to set a world record for being a stunt guy on fire doing jumping jacks.

We are not making this up.

The record, we are told, is 30. White got up to 12.

This all took place in Veterans Park, and it was part of a night-long celebration called the Nicolas UnCaged Festival – which paid to tribute to famed movie actor Nicolas Cage.

One or maybe more of Cage's screen characters have, at given times, found themselves on fire – hence the fire stunt.

Bottom line is, kids, don't – please don't – try this at home Or anywhere else.

A stuntman attempts to set a world record for doing jumping jacks while on fire. We kid you not. This happened Saturday at Veterans Park.

Fundraiser for Hamtramck Princess Prom Project

You also might be on the lookout to see Gov. Gretchen Whitmer pass by your house. She will be the first governor to participate in the run. How cool is that?
