— HAMTRAMCK'S NEWSPAPER OF RECORD —

'Newsmaker of the Year' changed city politics

By Charles Sercombe

As usual, trying to figure out who – or what – is our Newsmaker of the Year offers too many options.

Should it be the firing of City Manager Max Garbarino, police officer Dave Adamczyk, and the dismissal of Police Chief Jamiel Altaheri?

Or the ongoing accusations of election fraud via ballot harvesting by some candidates?

Or the accusation that two city councilmembers were not actually residents of the city?

Or, the unexpected decision of Hamtramck resident state Rep. Abraham Aiyash to not seek re-election? He was a champion of LGBTQ rights who steeled millions of dollars back to his hometown.

Or, the decision to get rid of the hated parking meters on Jos. Campau?

Or, the last portion of Caniff being rebuilt and repaved, ending three years of inconvenience?

Heck, that was all just in the first few months of 2025, and the list goes on.

But, in looking back, the number one Newsmaker was Mayor Amer Ghalib – who, four years ago, was the city's first Yemeni-American to be elected as mayor.

And his rise to the position of mayor also ushered in the political strength of the Yemeni community.

Ghalib, who is no longer mayor and who did not seek re-election last year, was the one person whose name appeared most often in The Review.

He was a news-making machine.

First, it was to announce his re-election bid. Here's what Ghalib had to say on Facebook about his decision earlier in the year:

"Without hesitation or fear, I proudly announce my candidacy for Mayor of Hamtramck for a second term, and to continue to serve our community with honesty, dedication and sincerity, through this position, and through other prestigious future positions."

Later, however, Ghalib withdrew from the election after being nominated by President Trump to be ambassador to Kuwait.

That journey took a number of twists and turns, until finally Ghalib got his confirmation hearing in October with the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

However, his dream to become an ambassador hit a wall of resistance from the get-go at his hearing when ranking committee member Sen. Jeanne Shaheen, a Democrat from New Hampshire, introduced all four ambassador nominees, including Ghalib.

Shaheen singled out Ghalib in her introductions by saying:

"I am very concerned about some of the statements that you have made – and, frankly, what appear to be antisemitic views."

During the next 40 minutes, Ghalib faced a barrage of questions from both Democratic and Republic senators about his past comments.

Sen. Ted Cruz (R-Texas) was particularly cutting, and pressured Ghalib to explain why he called former Iraq leader Saddam Hussain a "martyr."

It took Ghalib a few tries to clarify why he said that, finally saying: "In a moment of anger, I complimented Saddam because he kept Iran in check, and he – probably that's the only positive thing he did in his life."

New postal rule could affect elections

By Charles Sercombe

Heads up, voters.

For those who vote by absentee ballot and mail it in, there has been an important change in postal regulations.

From now on, the post office will no longer date any mail on the day they receive it. Instead, mail will now be postmarked when it is processed by the post office's sorting machine – not on the actual date it was dropped off.

The implication for voters is that their ballots may be postmarked after the election date – meaning that they will be disqualified from being counted. In Michigan, absentee ballots that are postmarked on election day are still counted, even if they come in late.

This new rule change could affect election results.

But there is one way for voters – or anyone whose mail, such as bills, are time sensitive – to avoid not having their ballots postmarked in time to qualify for being counted or verified.

You can ask the post office clerk to time stamp your mail, which goes by the technical name of getting a "round date stamp." Yes, that will mean standing in line and waiting – which could be a major inconvenience for some.

Another option is to drop off your absentee ballot at the Hamtramck city clerk's office in city hall, or place it in a drop box in front of city hall.

Critics of this new rule say it is meant to harm liberal cities and states.

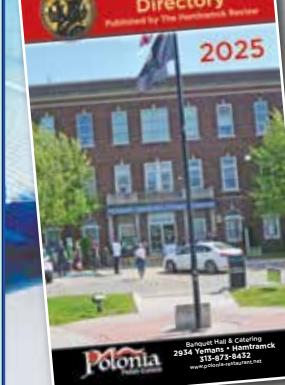

President Trump has claimed, without proof, that absentee ballots are a way for people to cheat, and that these ballots should be discontinued – despite the fact that he has, himself, voted by absentee ballot in the past.

However, the use of absentee ballots in Hamtramck has been controversial. There were accusations of ballot harvesting by some candidates and their associates in the August primary election, and in prior elections.

A city hall surveillance camera recorded a number of people dropping off handfuls of absentee ballots at a drop box in front of city hall.

And there is also the matter of councilmember Mohammed Hassan facing the following felony

He continued: "No question, he was a dictator. He committed a lot of crimes, including the invasion of Kuwait. And if that description in a moment of anger offended anybody, I'm willing to apologize, especially to the Kuwaiti people. I'm not very adamant about it."

Cruz also took issue with Ghalib "liking" a comment on social media that compared Jews to "monkeys."

Ghalib did not deny that he "liked" the comment, but said he had a "bad habit" of liking comments as a way of "acknowledging" that he received them.

"I don't agree with it, senator," Ghalib said. "Clicking on it doesn't mean I endorse it."

Cruz wasn't buying that explanation, saying: "Well, actually, it means exactly that."

Finally, Cruz said he wouldn't vote for Ghalib to be ambassador, saying:

"For the record, your long-standing public positions are directly contrary to President Trump's, and I will not be supporting your nomination."

Ghalib later blamed the press for the resistance by the Senate committee, saying that the media reports were "very, very biased articles. You can tell when you read them. ... The only thing left out is cussing me out. ... But I want to send a message to the people – you know, the radical media."

Ghalib also cryptically warned that those who were critical of his conservative cultural views will experience consequences, saying: "The future will hide a lot of surprises for you, and you are going to keep paying the prices."

Since then, the Senate has never held a vote on his confirmation, and, in January, his nomination was returned to President Trump.

It wasn't entirely over for Ghalib, who has said he still expects to get a job with the administration, presumably one that doesn't require Senate confirmation. That job is expected to be announced sometime soon, if not this week after The Review went to press.

Ghalib's association with, and endorsement of, Trump seemed like an odd pairing, considering Trump's past anti-Muslim comments. Ghalib is a Muslim.

The mayor teamed up with Trump after bitterly complaining about President Joe Biden's continued financial support of Israel while they were – and still are – bombing Gaza.

Trump has actually continued that same support, and, when pressed about it, Ghalib explained that his alignment with Trump has more to do with "family values."

He stressed that, while he disagrees with Trump's support of Israel, he has more in common with the Republican Party and its anti-LGBTQ positions.

Speaking of LGBTQ matters, a federal judge dealt a death blow to those seeking to have the pride flag displayed again on a city flagpole.

Federal judge David Lawson said the city was within its rights to ban the pride flag.

The mayor and council, who are all-male and all-Muslim, said they banned the flag in order for the city to remain "neutral" in matters that could be considered politically divisive or socially controversial.

Mayor Ghalib called the court ruling a "great victory" for the city.

"Your mayor and council were on the bright (sic) side of history," Ghalib said on his Facebook page.

He also said that this court decision was a defeat of Hamtramck's "deep state."

Ghalib did not elaborate on who or what constituted the "deep state," but he has often criticized former Mayor Karen Majewski and her supporters for, in his view, trying to undermine the city administration and his position as mayor.

Ghalib continued on Facebook: "And we will triumph in other cases against the lying, deception, and incendiary falsification from centers of influence, the deep city state, etc!"

He continued: "Trust your leadership and don't be fooled by the fake media that works to discredit all accomplishments in our city."

While Ghalib's political rise and tenure are over in Hamtramck, there's a good chance he will continue to make news in 2026.

In Our Opinion

A new year calls for a fresh start for city council

A new year has ushered in a new political era for Hamtramck.

We have a new mayor now, as well as a new city councilmember and two veteran councilmembers who are returning after time away.

Unfortunately, the new year got off to a rough start, judging by the council's first meeting that, for some reason, dragged on for two hours. What makes this remarkable is that the council had only one task to perform, and that was selecting a councilmember to be the mayor pro tem – the person who chairs council meetings when the mayor is absent.

What prolonged the meeting is the result of a bad habit that has become more and more common: adding items to the meeting agenda. Normally, any item added at the start of council meetings should be something that is needed to be addressed immediately.

Instead, we are seeing frivolous items being added at the start of meetings – items that could easily wait for another meeting. In this case, it was whether to allow two honorific street names – the names being those of two foreign politicians who have zero connection to Hamtramck.

These items were obviously not urgent matters – nor should they even be considered at all.

This particular situation is an abuse of power, and it certainly doesn't treat the public with respect.

Going forward, this practice needs to be halted. The public has a right to know what will be addressed before council meetings start.

With this being a new year, it's time to get rid of prior bad habits and practices, and instead remain true to the spirit of the state's Open Meetings Act – a law that our elected officials need to actually read.

Odds & Ends

Reminder ... Hamtramck's annual ceremony honoring Martin Luther King, Jr., will once again hold court in the Hamtramck High School Community Center this Monday, Jan. 19.

The Concerned Women of Hamtramck are hosting the annual Prayer Breakfast, with a Student Talent Show thrown in for good measure.

Remarkably, this will be the 28th year in a row for the event.

Dubbed, this year, "Faith, Courage and the Dream," the event will be held on MLK Day, Monday, Jan. 19, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Community Center, 11350 Charest.

With a tagline that reads, "Inspiring Our Children, Honoring Our Past, Building Our Future," you might expect there to be some involvement with local youth, and, just as in other past years, there will be.

The student talent showcase, called "Hamtramck's Got Talent," will commence promptly after the remnants of breakfast are cleared. No word, as yet, on how many youth will be participating to show off their skills.

Tickets for adults are $20; for kids, a mere $10; and you can even reserve an entire table for eight hungry souls for only $150.

You can score those tickets through the Eventbrite webpage, or through installing their app.

If that doesn't work for you, you might also try contacting either Madelyn Porter at (313) 573-0782 or Vanessa Grey at (313) 772-5097 to arrange another way to get your tickets.

Crime Watch ... On the evening of Dec. 28, a male resident of Edwin St. was shot during an armed robbery.

The victim survived his wounds, and the police department immediately swung into action to track down the suspect.

As a result of their quick work, Eric Jonathan Speller, Jr., 32, of Eastpointe, faces a number of felonies, including assault with intent to murder.

On social media, Deputy Chief Andy Mileski credited the work of the detective bureau and police officers.

"Their dedication was instrumental in identifying and apprehending the suspect," he said.

On the ICE killing ... Michigan State Sen. Stephanie Chang, whose district includes Hamtramck, released a statement on ICE agent Jonathan Ross shooting and killing Renee Nicole Good in Minneapolis.

"Even with this change, the tunnel is still the most affordable way to cross the border, and continues to offer a safe and dependable experience for our customers."

To sign up for a Nexpress Account, go online to: <https://nexpress.dwtunnel.com>.

Art party ... Those hard-artying folks over at Hatch have put together a retrospective show they're calling "Twenty," in celebration of their 20 years of existence.

The show brings together the works of 20 artists who "have been important to Hatch over the years."

Those artists, listed alphabetically, are: Jide Aje, Suzanne Baumann, Peter Daniel Bernal, Sean Bieri, Boisali Biswas, Matt Feazell, Melissa Hones, Tisch Mikhail Lewis, Luke MacGilvray, Laura Macintyre, Andy Malone, Robert Piatek, Chris Schneider, Coral Sifre, Dawn Smith, Gilda Snowden, Krystl Spence, Jack Summers, Renee Willoughby, and Carl Wilson.

While the opening night reception has already come and gone, the art, well, remains. At least, until Feb. 8. The gallery is open Thursday and Friday evenings, 6-9 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday afternoons, noon-5 p.m. for your viewing pleasure.

They are located in the old Hamtramck police station at 3456 Evaline St.

Check them out online at hatchart.org.

City Hall Insider ...

What is our City Council up to these days?
We have the highlights of the latest council meeting.

By Charles Sercombe

The city council met on Dec. 16, and all council-members were in attendance.

The city's auditor company, UHY, gave an overview of the city's financial situation.

The highlights included:

- The net position of the city was $46.8 million on June 30, 2025, which was an increase of $25.6 million from the prior year. The most significant cause of this change was receiving multiple grant fundings for water and sewer infrastructure improvements, which totaled $22.4 million.

- The city's General Fund balance on June 30, 2025 was $10.1 million, an increase of $1.25 million from the prior year. The total General Fund balance was comprised of $9.9 million in unassigned fund balances and $0.2 million in nonspendable fund balance. The city's unassigned fund balance represented 37% of total expenditures in the General Fund.

- The city spent $23 million on capital assets during the fiscal year that ended June 30, 2025, with $17.7 million of that amount spent on capitalized water and sewer infrastructure projects.

- Property tax revenue increased across all funds by 6.5 percent from the prior year as a result of increased property value. For the General Fund, this amounted to an increase of only $30 thousand, due to the net decrease in property tax revenues caused by the combination of a $1.1 million increase in CIPP collections and a decrease of $1.4 million from the loss of the Wayne County Jail PILOT.

- Income tax revenue increased approximately $998,000, or 21.1 percent from the prior year, as a result of operational improvements that increased the rate of collection.

- State-shared revenue increased approximately $1.9 million, or 37 percent, from the prior year as a result of new statutory revenue sharing distributions based on taxable values, weighted population, and yield equalization.

During public comment, several people spoke in favor of a resolution to be considered by the city council that would give a portion of Jos. Campau the honorary name of Greg Kowalski.

Kowalski was a leading figure behind the creation and operation of the Hamtramck Historical Museum.

In one email that was read out loud, a person said Kowalski "always found a way to make Hamtramck attractive to the surrounding public."

The council later granted the honorific name, but changed the street location from the portion of Jos. Campau in front of the museum to the street that Kowalski lives on, which is Wyandotte.

In another email, a person urged the council to remove Councilmember Muhiith Mahmood from office, accusing him of not being a resident of the city.

"Councilmember Mahmood's residency is already public knowledge," the person said.

(A prior city internal investigation revealed evidence that both Mahmood and Councilmember Abu Musa are not actual residents of the city. According to the report, Mahmood lives in Troy with his family, and Musa lives in Warren with his family. Both deny the allegations.)

Several Hamtramck High School students and others spoke in favor of a proposal to refurbish the city tennis courts in Veterans Park. The project would also recreate the original six tennis courts.

The project was OK'd by council later in the meeting. The repairs are being paid by the Hamtramck Parks Conservancy, and the cost will be $113,343.

Lynn Blasey criticized the council for continuing to add items to the agenda after it had already been made public.

"It is not in good faith of the public that agenda items would not be shared with the public in accordance to the (state) Open Meetings Act before the city council meetings happen," Blasey said. "This is an ongoing trend with the city council. I hope that changes in the new year."

Bill Meyer said he's noticed a number of billboards advertising attorneys who offer their services to people who want to file lawsuits.

He said it's all about making money – "suing people and making money for the lawyers. It's a disgrace."

Meyer also credited outgoing Mayor Amer Ghalib, who did not seek re-election, for never "banging the gavel once. You never insulted anyone, nor did you ignore or deny anyone's concerns or interests."

He also praised Ghalib for never being an "opportunist."

Meyer continued in his praise of Ghalib: "You brought sanity and fairness to the council chambers, and, probably most important, you never sued anyone in the city to make money. So, farewell to the greatest leader I've seen in my lifetime here."

Mayor-elect Adam Alharbi urged the council to reject 37 uncounted absentee ballots, which were not counted because they were found in the city clerk's office after the election was over.

"They're compromised," he said. "They were open ballots, and they lost the chain of custody."

Former state Rep. Abraham Aiyash said he had just become aware that state Republican legislators cut out $645 million worth of grants from the state budget that was promised to various communities – including Hamtramck.

Among several projects earmarked for Hamtramck, $800,000 was granted to the city to pay for a new fire truck.

Mayor Ghalib said he had talked with some Republicans, who told him that was untrue.

Aiyash countered that the Republican majority leader, Matt Hall, cannot be trusted.

"If Matt Hall tells you he can bring back that money for Hamtramck, I will tell you he is a liar," Aiyash said.

He continued, saying Hall "is not a person you should trust, or anyone in this city should trust. He's one of the worst people I had the displeasure of serving with."

Aiyash also corrected Mayor Ghalib, who said that he voted against funding projects for Hamtramck.

Aiyash said he, in fact, voted in favor of the funding.

In new business, the council agreed to OK emergency funding for sewer and water line repairs.

The council also OK'd the purchase of two emergency radios for the fire department. The cost was a bit over $15,000.

In another contract matter, the council agreed to award a contract for an improvement project for the alley that runs on the west side of Jos. Campau from Caniff to Holbrook.

The $1 million project is being paid for by the state.

A note to the council said the improvement will turn the alley "into a pedestrian and cyclist-friendly route in our downtown. Once completed, this project will bring numerous benefits to Hamtramck and the businesses on Joseph Campau."

In a matter that Council-member Mohammed Hassan added onto the agenda at the start of the council meeting, a discussion was held on whether to discontinue allowing city employees to roll over one week's worth of unused vacation time. Hassan argued that some employees have "misused" this, although he did not provide specific details.

The council eventually agreed to stop that practice, and adopt a former policy that city employees now have to "use it or lose it" when it comes to vacation time.

In another matter that Hassan had added to

NOTICE OF INTENT TO ISSUE WATER SUPPLY SYSTEM REVENUE BONDS TO THE ELECTORS OF THE CITY OF HAMTRAMCK

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the City Council of the City of Hamtramck (the "City") intends to issue bonds, in one or more series, in an amount of not to exceed $5,650,000 (the "Bonds").

The Bonds shall be issued to pay the cost to make improvements to the City's Water Supply System, including, but not limited to, removal, replacement, and installation of water service lines in portions of the City to comply with the Michigan Department of Environment, Great Lakes, and Energy's Lead and Copper Rules, acquisition and construction of any related appurtenances and facilities, as well as all work necessary and incidental to these improvements, including without limitation the restoration of property, streets, rights-of-way, and easements affected by the improvements and to pay the costs of issuing the Bonds and capitalized interest, if any.

The Bonds of this issue shall mature within the maximum terms permitted by law with interest on the unpaid balance at a rate not to exceed the maximum rate permitted by law payable over not more than forty (40) years from the date of issuance of the Bonds. The Bonds shall be issued pursuant to Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended ("Act 94").

SOURCE OF PAYMENT

The principal of and interest on the Bonds shall be payable from the net revenues derived from the operation of the Water Supply System. In addition, the Bonds may be secured by a pledge of the distributable state aid received by the City from the State of Michigan and/or the full faith and credit of the City as limited by applicable constitutional, statutory, and charter limitations on the taxing power of the City.

RIGHT OF REFERENDUM

The Bonds will be issued without a vote of the electors approving such Bonds, unless, within 45 days from the date of publication of this Notice of Intent, a petition, signed by not less than 10% of the registered electors residing within the limits of the City shall have been filed with the acting City Clerk or other recording officer of the City requesting a referendum upon the question of the issuance of the Bonds. If such a petition is filed, the Bonds shall not be issued until approved by the vote of a majority of the electors residing within the City qualified to vote and voting thereon at a general or special election.

This Notice is published pursuant to the requirements of Section 33 of Act 94.

getting a job with President Trump's administration, seemed glad to pass the torch to Alharbi, who Ghalib had endorsed.

"I feel so much relief that the responsibility is taken to another person now," he said.

Ghalib assured Alharbi, in an apparent jab at the media scrutiny that he experienced, that "We are not going to sit there and count and hunt for your mistakes, like some people did, but we will be on your side and behind you."

The former mayor also conceded that it is unlikely he will become the ambassador to Kuwait – a job that requires confirmation by the U.S. Senate. Ghalib's hearing ran into a roadblock over past social media statements that some senators considered antisemitic.

"But I'll take another important role in the (Trump) administration that will enable me to stay in touch with the community, and so I will continue to serve this community forever," he said.

(As of press time on Thursday, there has been no announcement of Ghalib's role in the Trump administration.)

One of the accomplishments that Ghalib has boasted about in his four years as mayor was seeing the city budget grow a surplus instead of yearly deficits.

"City hall is stable," he said. "Don't listen to the noise in the news. ... We are far, far away from falling into an emergency management. This is the best situation in decades."

City Councilmember Mohammed Hassan also spoke, and emphasized that "I'm a man of action – not corruption. ... Today I want to tell the media we are not corrupted."

It was a curious comment, to say the least, considering that he faces felony election fraud charges, and that there are ongoing election investigations into others.

the agenda, the council agreed to appoint him as president of a police oversight committee.

(Hassan is facing felony election fraud charges.)

The council then discussed whether to adopt a motion to accept the election results from the county, and disregard 37 uncounted ballots if they are allowed to be counted by a court.

(If the ballots are allowed to be counted, it could change the result of the mayoral election.

Councilmember Mahmood is fighting to have the ballots counted. He lost his mayoral bid by 11 votes.)
