Quick Hits

Over on the right side of this page you can read all about the annual Hamtramck Neighborhood Arts Festival.

The festival is happening this Saturday (Oct. 14) all afternoon and early evening.

This is not a traditional festival by any means. It's spread out throughout the city's neighborhoods, and takes place inside artist studios, on vacant lots, and on front porches.

You can find out the schedule of events by turning to page 4. Have fun exploring the neighborhoods.

Quote of the week ...

Who said this, and what is it about? You can find the quote and the story it belongs to somewhere in the pages of this issue.

“We want to be in the forefront of this.”

Proposed development on Caniff could spur new investment

By Charles Sercombe

The landscape of Caniff will undergo a radical change starting next spring.

At the recent Hamtramck Design Showcase two weeks ago, developer George Nosis unveiled his company's plan to build a four-story building that will be a combination of retail and office spaces on the ground floor and lofts on the top three.

“Hamtramck is the new development city,” Nosis said. “We are going to see some major growth in the city.”

Nosis’ development company, Sparta Development, now owns six lots next to Planet Ant Hall. He said groundbreaking should begin by next April or May.

A house on one of the lots is being considered for donation to the Friends of the Hamtramck

Plans for a major development on Caniff were unveiled at the recent Hamtramck Design Showcase. The development will be a four-story building covering six lots. The ground floor space will be reserved for retail and offices, and the upper floors will be living spaces.

Historical Commission, but it would require the group to move the house to another location.

According to sources, that is unlikely to happen since the costs involved are more than what the non-profit group could raise. The house is believed to be 100 years old, hence its historical significance.

A two-story brick building on the last lot of the project site will be saved and incorporated into the development. Nosis said that it will serve as an entry point to the development, and also as his company's office.

Cosmos football team needs one more win for the history

The Cosmos football team practices on Thursday for Friday's big game. If the Cosmos win tonight's game, they will qualify for state playoffs.

By Charles Sercombe

The Hamtramck High School varsity football team is poised to achieve a first in the school's long and legendary sports history.

“We're on the verge of making history,” said HHS Athletic Director Martin Kirby.

If the Cosmos win tonight's game (Friday, Oct. 13), the team will qualify for the state playoffs.

Kirby said the team has never qualified for that honor. The team was one game short of a win last year to qualify. So far, the Cosmos have a 5-2 record, and once again need just one more win to head to the state playoffs.

“All season long the team has used the motto 'Make History' and 'Why not us?'” Kirby said. “This hardworking

Arts fest is about neighbors

By Charles Sercombe

Expect to see a lot of people walking the streets this Saturday.

For the eighth year in a row, the Hamtramck Neighborhood Arts Festival will take over this town, on Oct. 14.

As our City Life columnist Walter Wasacz reported last week, you can kick off the day with a brunch at Bumbo's (3001 Holbrook), from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

So what is the festival all about?

Organizers say it “offers a humble way to engage with artists on a more intimate level. The festival's self-guided tours can include: Artist open studios, backyard performances, ambient sound alleys, murals-in-progress and porch troubadours. Participating shops will also offer unique art-related experiences.”

Co-founder Steve Hughes goes on to say: “The HNAF embraces the idea that art is for everyone – all are welcome to participate, and all are welcome to tour the artist workspaces and attend the day (and night) long events.”

The day's schedule includes:

2 p.m. - 8 p.m. – HNAF is spread throughout four zones, in different neighborhoods. The festival includes free bicycle rentals (at Wheelhouse on Jos. Campau and Florian); a pop-up bookstore at Bank Suey; live musical performances at folk-art installation Hamtramck

Metro news ...

It's said that whatever happens to Detroit, so goes Hamtramck. Our friends over at modelmedia.com have been reporting on fascinating development projects for the past several years.

With their permission, here is an edited version of this week's story:

According to data from the 2000 U.S. Census, Metro Detroit ranks third among metropolitan Polish-American population centers in the United States. As a result, Polish fare is popular not only in Hamtramck, but also in the southeast area.

Hamtramck's two Polish markets have been a part of that growth.

Bozek's Market Founded in the early nineties, Bozek's is a Polish specialty market with shops in Hamtramck and Sterling Heights that's known for its homemade kielbasa (Polish sausages) and pierogis (dumplings stuffed with fillings like potato, ground meat, or sauerkraut). It's also got a reputation for fresh meats, in-house soups, homemade baked goods and a wide selection of imported items from Europe. Customers can purchase hot ready-to-eat meals, party platters and variety bundles of different fresh meats.

Edward Bozek, a native of Kraków Poland, established the market that bears his name in 1991, four years after he immigrated to the United States. According to his son Michael, who now manages the shops, he's been preparing meats his entire adult life.

Bozek's cut the ribbon on their first Sterling Heights store in 2001, and relocated to a different spot in that city in 2007. European immigrants tend to move directly to Hamtramck when they first come to the region, according to Bozek, but many later move to the suburbs. So Bozek's followed their customers to their new homes.

While Bozek's clientele is primarily made up of European immigrants, the grocery makes an effort to appeal to neighborhood customers as well. Noting the recent closure of Polish Market's Hamtramck store, Michael Bozek thinks Bozek's has continued to thrive at their original location because they've been able to reach out to a broad customer base.

"We diversified with times," he says. "We advertise on TV and have group of student-athletes have worked very hard to make history happen."

The high school sports teams – which includes football, baseball, basketball, tennis and wrestling – were once powerhouses in the area during the 1920s through the 1960s.

During football season decades ago the business district would close down for home games on Friday afternoons and fans would stream into Keyworth Stadium.

The historical stadium recently received huge improvements and media attention after the Detroit City Football Club – a semi-pro soccer team, soon to become a full-fledge pro team – made it their new home.

Tonight's game starts at 7 p.m. in Keyworth Stadium. Admission is $5 for adults and $4 for students. The Cosmos will play against Harper Woods.

Detroit police announce arrests in sexual attacks of local women

By Charles Sercombe

For the past two weeks concern has grown over the safety of local women.

On Sept. 30 and last Sunday two Hamtramck women reported being abducted and sexually assaulted while biking, in the earlier incident, and walking in the second, in the area of the Russell Industrial Center, located near the Hamtramck border with Detroit.

A third abduction happened Sunday in the area of Denton and St. Aubin.

On Wednesday afternoon, however, Detroit police announced the arrest of two Detroit males, one in his 30s and another in his 20s. Police said the suspects are serial rapists believed to be connected with the recent attacks and may have been involved in other incidents.

The assaults prompted a meeting of local residents Tuesday evening at the Outer Limits Lounge on Caniff near the Hamtramck border. Most of those who attended were women, who said they will to start up several prevention and awareness programs.

There have been occasional reports by women and school-age girls of males following them during the past year. None of them have resulted in attacks.

Hamtramck Councilmember Andrea Karpinski said she was followed by a driver of a van on Sunday evening as she walked down Jos. Campau.

In the three abductions, the suspects drove a van or a SUV.

Karpinski urged those who suspect they have been followed or experience any other suspicious situations to report it immediately to the police department.

More and more residents can be seen riding bikes through the city, and many ride their bikes from here to Eastern Market and to Wayne State University, as well as other cultural destination points in Detroit.

The common advice handed out is to travel in pairs or large groups, and especially avoid riding alone late at night. The three recent reported abductions occurred during daylight.

Srodek's Campau Quality Sausage Co.

Located on Joseph Campau Avenue, Srodek's Campau Quality Sausage Co. is another family-owned operation based in Hamtramck. As the name suggests, it specializes in meat; hungry patrons can pick from nearly 40 different varieties of smoked meat made in the market's own smokehouses.

There's also a vast assortment of ethnic and domestic food to choose from: domestic and imported deli meats and cheeses; six varieties of sauerkraut; a large selection of pierogi (including non-traditional pizza and jalapeno popper options); soups; and Polish specialties like golumpki (stuffed cabbage) and nalesniki (crepes).

Magdalena Srodek, the granddaughter of the shop's founders, runs their Hamtramck store with her brother Rodney.

"When it comes to deli meats and things of that nature, we make everything in-house. So we stuff cabbages," Magdalena said. "The greater majority of our lunch meats are made here. We go to the extent of barreling our own sauerkraut and even make our own homemade farmer's cheese that my mom curds."

Srodek's now supplies

Proposed development

on Caniff could spur

new investment

Developer George Nosis talks about his development plan for Caniff. Below: This 100-year-old house may have to be demolished to make room for the development.

ation of “micro lofts” on the second floor, which are living spaces that are about 1,000 square feet in size. They will be offered for lease only, Nosis said.

The third floor will have larger lofts at about 1,500 square feet. The top floor will have four or five “penthouse” lofts with connecting green-spaces.

In all, the project cost is estimated at $3.8 million. Plans are still being worked out, Nosis said, and the development cost could change.

While the site is zoned for commercial and residential spaces, the company will have to get permission to build four stories in height. Most of the nearby structures are two stories in height.

Nosis, a third generation Hamtramckan, said he has wanted to develop in Hamtramck since the 1990s but the timing was never right. Now, with Detroit making an aggressive comeback, Nosis said market forces finally aligned.

The housing market in the city has tightened up considerably in the last year. Rents in downtown and midtown Detroit have skyrocketed, forcing many to seek housing elsewhere.

Hamtramck is considered ideal because of its close proximity to downtown Detroit while still offering affordable rents – although what is now considered reasonable is subject to change. Also, the city offers plenty of entertainment and restaurant options all within walking distance.

Nosis said he expects his development will jump-start similar investment in Hamtramck.

“This will bring more people to invest in this town,” he said. “We want to be in the forefront of this.”

For every $100 spent in locally owned business, $68 returns to the community

Review: Opinion Page

In Our Opinion

Hamtramck’s comeback is rivaled only by the rise of Detroit

Hamtramck has never been more appealing. We are hearing from a lot of folks that the housing market here is very tight. There are apparently many folks waiting to call Hamtramck home – thanks in large part to the rising rents in Detroit. It looks like we can thank Detroit’s increasing comeback to Hamtramck’s own rising star. Our business district, too, has seen increased attention. Recently an independent media outlet named Hamtramck one of the best “foodie” towns in the country. Interestingly, only our two Polish restaurants were singled out. While they both deserve the recognition, what was overlooked are the incredible number of other ethnic restaurants. We now boast of at least a dozen Middle Eastern eateries. We even have a very fine sushi place. Increasingly, Hamtramck is becoming a destination place for our variety of restaurants and our always lively music scene. Thanks to the folks at Planet Ant Theatre, we also can boast hosting one of the best theater outlets in the Detroit area. We can now add to the list of great things our one and only bicycle shop, Wheelhouse. That store was recently named one of the best bike shops in the country. At this point we can safely assume the list of great things and best-ofs will only increase. Hamtramck, you’re looking good.

Odds & Ends

Congratulations... Joseph Myrick, a longtime security agent for the public schools, sent us a note about his son, Joseph Myrick III, who recently graduated from Marygrove College with a Bachelor’s of Art degree in English and Psychology. Joseph had a number of accomplishments during his college years: He graduated cum laude with a 3.35 grade point average, was president of Sigma Tau Delta English Honor Society, a member of the National Association for Success and Leadership, National Dean’s List, Who’s Who among college and university students in America and had perfect attendance for four years and one semester. His father and mother, Joyce, are very proud parents. Good luck Joseph in your future endeavors.

Update... According to Police Chief Anne Moise, the department cannot confirm a rumor that the young man involved in the crash last week at Jos. Campau and Caniff has died. The man was speeding southbound on Campau when he spun out of control at the Caniff intersection and sliced off the driver side of his car when he hit a nearby light pole. He was ejected from the car.

In another matter, police did ID the woman who struck a 5-year-old boy on Miller, who turned out to be a family friend of the boy. Police issued her a misdemeanor ticket for leaving the scene of an accident. The boy received minor injuries. And in another hit-and-run, the 5-year-old boy who was struck by a driver on Zinow is still recovering at Children’s Hospital. That driver and his passenger are facing several felony charges. They were apprehended thanks to several tips from the community. Police are asking neighbors of White Star bar on Conant near Evaline to make a report of what they witnessed or any damage they suffered from gunshots that were fired outside the club on Saturday night. It seems a number of folks complained about the incident on social media but did not come forward to make an official report with the police department. Without their information, investigators have little to work with in finding out more about the shooting, which some said sounded like an automatic weapon firing at least 20 or more shots at nearby houses. Srodek’s plans to expand this fall by opening a second store in Sterling Heights, which will feature a restaurant, European-style bakery and in-house microbrewery. Asked why they’ve done so well, Magdalena Srodek says it’s because Srodek’s employees prepare food as if they’re making it for themselves and treat their customers with respect.
