Quick Hits

There are two important events happening this coming week.

As we all know this is a holiday weekend leading up to the Fourth of July on Monday.

By the looks of things, the weather is going to be perfect for backyard barbecues and get-togethers.

Happy Fourth of July everyone.

And then on Tuesday or Wednesday, our Muslim community will celebrate the end of Ramadan with Eid.

As of Thursday, when we went to print, it's looking like Eid will be on Wednesday.

There will be three public prayer events. Part of Conant, from Caniff to Casmere, will be blocked off starting around 6 a.m. to 10 a.m. for an expected large group of worshippers.

Latham at Holbrook will also be closed off in the morning.

And at Veterans Park the faithful will join together.

Happy Eid!

City's message to residents: be a good neighbor and mind your trash

By Charles Sercombe

Last week we focused on illegal dumping in the city.

But there is a different kind of “dumping” that you can see in almost every alley, here and there.

It's those pesky neighbors who allow their garbage can to overflow and spill over into the alley.

Or it might be the careless business that allows its dumpsters to also overflow.

That practice is a topic in the city's newest newsletter in June that went out with every water bill.

The city has one request in this matter: “Be a good neighbor!!”

Or so that's what the message the newsletter blasts.

To drive the message home, the city provided photos of how not to dispose of your house

The city is asking residents to avoid packing their trash cans like this and piling up loose garbage in the alleys. For those who don't comply, tickets range from $100 to $500 depending on how many times a household is in violation.

City Life

Opening up your third eye

By Walter Wasacz

Vibrant city life is all about spontaneity. Often times what is the unplanned and unexpected is the best way to enjoy an evening in Hamtramck.

On Wednesday, I was walking east on Holbrook, cutting across on a diagonal line from the Kowalski plant to the corner of Dubois St. I'd just met a friend for happy hour in Midtown, at the vegetarian restaurant Seva, a distance of about four miles, give or take.

It was a beautiful night for a long walk. It was now around 8 p.m., and I was getting tired as I got closer to home. I'd had a light appetizer at Seva, but was still hungry as I approached Kelly's Bar.

At the sidewalk in front of the bar, I saw Brad Hales, a musician/DJ I've known for over 20

City’s message to residents: be a good neighbor and mind your trash trash, and how to do it. This has been a pet peeve of Christine Komisarz of Florian St. for a number of years. Those who allow household garbage to pile high in their cans she calls “flaps.” That refers to the top of the garbage can flipped open to accommodate the overflow. “I don’t know what their issue is,” Komisarz said of households that do this. “How can you be so lazy as to not close the lid on your garbage container? If you have too much garbage for one container, buy another! Seems like some people just don’t care.” If it is a case of laziness, ignorance, or just not caring, allowing loose garbage isn’t taken lightly by the city. If you allow garbage to accumulate in your alley you can be slapped with a ticket and charged a $100 fine. If it happens a second time, you will receive a $250 fine, and a third time is considered a misdemeanor and will cost you $500. Loose trash is not only a code violation, it attracts the kind of guest Hamtramck doesn’t welcome: rats and mice. The city took a huge step several years ago when it issued garbage cans with attached lids to every household. Prior to that it was up to residents to decide what container to use. Often, those containers had no lids, or in many cases residents just threw out plastic garbage bags. In both cases it was easy pickings for rodents, and the city had a massive rat infestation problem for several years. It got to such a point that one former Hewitt resident – in an apparent attempt to draw the attention of city officials – propped up a homemade sign on his front lawn that called Hamtramck “Rat City.” Once the city issued garbage cans, the rat population decreased noticeably. Still, there are too many households that flaunt common sense, and refuse to be the “good neighbor” the city asks everyone to be.

New fiscal year for the city brings in a shuffle in city hall

By Charles Sercombe

For the past couple of years Community & Economic Development Director Kathy Angerer has worn several hats in city hall. On top of economic development duties she has headed up the city’s code enforcement department, the Downtown Development Authority and had several other duties. All that is changing in the city’s new fiscal year, which starts today, July 1. Economic development will now be contracted out to a private company. Angerer’s role with the city has been redefined by City Manager Katrina Powell.

Angerer is now head of the newly-created Community & Government Affairs Department. She is still responsible for code enforcement and now park development, special events, marketing, grant writing and being the city’s liaison with Lansing lawmakers and government officials. Angerer is no stranger to Lansing. She was a Democratic State Representative from 2005 to 2010, serving in a district that covered parts of Washtenaw and Monroe counties. “Ms. Angerer’s background is in communication and governmental affairs and she enjoys writing and taking on special projects, so I wish to exploit that talent,” Powell said about her new role. During Angerer’s tenure in economic development she secured a major grant that allowed for vast improvements in the city’s three parks. Powell said she wants her to focus on promoting use of the parks. “With the vast improvements to our parks, we need to direct some focus on promoting our parks, and planning special events for our residents, so that they can enjoy those spaces to their full intent,” Powell said. “Plus we need to look at growing our parks, if possible, with pocket parks in neighborhoods etc.” Just as important, Powell said, is the need to promote the city in general. “Public information and Marketing are currently non-existent in this City and both are extremely important in shining positive light on our community,” Powell said. “As stated by the mayor during our budget work session, ‘The only way we are going to be successful is to grow our way out.’ We need to let people know we are here and open for business.” As for Angerer’s role in Lansing, Powell said: “We need someone speaking for us on legislative issues that impact our community, and I’m told Ms. Angerer knows her way around Lansing and its politics, so I have high expectations on this front for Hamtramck. This is just the beginning of our climb and my hope is that we can continue to build on this department in the years ahead.” Angerer said she looks “forward to this opportunity to serve the residents of the City of Hamtramck and will continue to work to make Hamtramck a great place to live, work, visit and build a business.”

Two teens at housing project accidentally shot in dispute involving adults

By Charles Sercombe

The “no snitch” rule of the street is hampering a police investigation into a shooting that left two teens injured.

Last Sunday night residents in the Col. Hamtramck Housing project were spilled out into their lawns and street because of the extreme heat.

At around 11 p.m. in the 12000 block of Grand Haven two men suddenly got into a fight, one of whom had a gun.

According to sources, the man with the gun pistol-whipped the other man. After that, gunfire erupted, striking a 14-year-old boy in the ankle and a 13-year-old in the buttocks.

It was not clear how many shots were fired.

Both boys, who are Kosciusko Middle School students, were taken to Children’s Hospital in Detroit and were released this week, said Schools Superintendent Tom Niczay.

Police are seeking the identity and location of the shooter. The Review’s source said witnesses have refused to cooperate with investigators.

Conditions in the housing project can be brutal during hot weather. There are no air conditioning units in the apartments because the electric wiring has not been updated to accommodate the energy needs.

There are over 200 apartments in the project, which were built in the 1930s. The housing project is the fourth oldest in the state.

Hamtramck Housing Commission Director Kevin Kondrat said that regardless of the stalled police investigation, there will be evictions as a result of the skirmish.

“We’re looking to evict people,” he said.

The Housing Commission has a strict policy on residents toeing the law – even if involves someone visiting their residence who causes trouble.

There is a five-year waiting list to get an apartment, which are federally subsidized.

Kondrat said although he understands that the apartments are hot, he will ask the Police Department to crack down on curfew violations.

In recent months there has been a rash of incidents in the projects, involving domestic assaults, break-ins, thefts and large gatherings of unruly people.

Anyone with information regarding the shooting on Sunday is asked to call (313) 876-7800.

Voters will head to the polls for Aug. 2 Primary Election

By Charles Sercombe

Two Hamtramck elected officials will be in the upcoming Aug. 2 Primary Election.

The election is held to reduce the field of candidates for the November General Election.

Councilmember Mohammed Hassan is seeking to unseat State Rep. Rose Mary Robinson, who is seeking her third – and last – term.

He is joined by Hamtramck resident Matt Schonert who is running as a Republican in his bid to win Robinson’s seat.

Also on the ballot is Councilmember Anam Miah who is also taking on an incumbent, Wayne County Commissioner Martha Scott. Scott has been an elected official in one capacity or another since the 1980s.

Both councilmembers face a huge challenge in trying to beat incumbents. In the world of politics it’s nearly impossible to beat out an office holder.

Hassan told The Review that he realizes he faces an uphill battle. But, he said, running in this election will give him a boost in the next election for Robinson’s seat.

Also on the ballot include candidates running for county sheriff, clerk, treasurer and an open seat for a judgeship for the 3rd Circuit Court.

There are also two millage renewals, one for county and various community parks and one for the Detroit Zoo. Hamtramck City Clerk August Gitschlag said over 200 absentee ballots have already been sent out.

Review: Opinion Page

In Our Opinion

Our endorsements for the Aug. 2 Primary Election

Believe it or not, there is an election coming up in four weeks.

A primary election will be held on Aug. 2 to whittle down the number of candidates in several races.

Hamtramck has two candidates of note vying for office. City Councilmember Anam Miah is challenging Wayne County Commissioner Martha Scott.

Scott has held a number of public offices in her long career. While she has always been a friend to Hamtramck, it's time for her to make way for a new generation. Of course, her reputation and name recognition virtually guarantees her re-election.

Still, it would be better for Hamtramck to have one of its own representing the city in the county.

In his time serving on city council Miah has shown a grasp of a number of issues. One of his strengths is that when he has a concern about an issue, he doesn't let go until something is done.

It's time for a changing of the guard in Wayne County, and we recommend a vote for ANAM MIAH for Wayne County Commissioner of the 3rd District.

Another councilmember is also running for office, Mohammed Hassan. He is running against State Rep. Rose Mary C. Robinson, who is seeking her third and final term.

(Hamtramckan Matt Schonert is also running in this election as the lone Republican candidate.)

Robinson has also been a friend of Hamtramck. In her case, she deserves a third term. It would be a shame to waste her experience and contacts at this point.

It would be nice to have a local in that seat, but Hassan can hang on for another two years to wait his turn.

We urge voters to support ROSE MARY C. ROBINSON.

In other races we recommend the following:

For Wayne County Treasurer, ERIC SABREE.

For County Clerk, CATHY M. GARRETT.

Count Sheriff, BENNY N. NAPOLEON.

In the race for the Judgeship in the 3rd Circuit Court, there is no incumbent running. Voters are told to vote for no more than four candidates. We support ROBERT FICANO, THOMAS JOHN HATHAWAY and ISAAC ROBINSON.

There are also two millage proposals, both of which are extensions of existing ones. Vote YES for continuing a parks millage and another one for funding the Detroit Zoo.

Odds & Ends

Art tour... Wednesday's "Walk and Talk" art tour with DIA Director Salvador Salort-Pons was a huge success.

Over 60 people showed up to get a personal tour with Salort-Pons and hear why he selected the reproductions of various art pieces that are exhibited throughout town.

This was a rare privilege for the city.

At the end of the tour the group stopped by the Hamtramck Historical Museum for an ice cream social.

Ongoing... Hamtramck's art collective, Hatch, is still hosting an online fundraiser to help renovate Hamtramck Disneyland.

The whimsical collection of whirligigs was the creation of Dymtro Szylak who died last year.

The artwork sits on top of two next-door houses on Klinger. The piece and the houses, which were purchased by Hatch for $100,000, need some serious repairs.

The group is aiming to raise $50,000 by Aug. 20. If they reach that goal something even better happens. The Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) and the Michigan Economic Development Corporation's (MEDC) Public Spaces Community Places program will match that amount, dollar for dollar.

In other words, $50,000 becomes $100,000.

in the street.

There has always been a concern in Hamtramck over the use of fireworks because of how close the houses are and the fear that they could set off a fire.

Despite that fear, the use of fireworks here is widespread.

While fireworks may be snuffed out this holiday weekend, you can get the real deal on July 30 at Keyworth Stadium when the Hamtramck Recreation Commission hosts another fireworks night.

The event will be free to the public.

lot adjacent to the building, kids were hanging out and talking. The late-June, early summer sun was still hanging on. It was a beautiful local scene, unpretentious and relaxed.

Timmy reminded me he has an art show opening Saturday, July 2 (tomorrow) at Hatch Art Gallery, 3456 Evaline St. It's a retrospective exhibition called "Splatter Brains and Poster People," artwork from Lampinen's past and stuff he's working on now, including poster art from his performances.

On top of all the credits I listed above, Lampinen is also a Kresge Arts Fellow, winning that distinguished award in 2010. He's a talented character, a perfect fit for Hamtramck city life.

The opening reception for "Splatter Brains" is 6-10 p.m. If you miss the opening, here are Saturday gallery hours when you can catch the show through the end of this month: July 9, 16, 23, noon - 6 p.m. with a not-to-be-missed live performance July 23, 6-10 p.m.

The show closes with noon - 6 p.m. hours Saturday, July 30.

Timmy Lampinen's art and music is well worth the time to see and hear. It's intended for instant impact, to free your mind and open up your "third eye." Highly recommended.
