Hamtramck's families will find themselves welcomed at a free event being sponsored by the school district later next month.

From noon until 4 p.m. on Wednesday, July 31. the Hamtramck High School Community Center building will play host to this event. The building is located at 11350 Charest, adjacent to the school on the south side.

The event is meant primarily as a friendly neighborhood meet-andgreet with school system personnel, including educators and student leaders.

Various community and family organizations will be on hand, and there will be free voluntary health screenings available as well, includblood pressure checks, a body mass index calculation, glucose level checks, and so forth.

On the more entertaining end, there will be henna temporary tattoos and face painting, free gift bags, and even a free lunch.

Special to The Review

Now that summer is here, a lot of us are still scrambling to get into shape.

A major challenge for most folks is maintaining a proper fitness regimen, and a nutritional diet, to keep that summer bod.

Hamtramck native Eliz-

Open for business

By Charles Sercombe

Hamtramck's new recycling program is now officially open for business.

On Monday, a ribboncutting ceremony was held at the new drop-off site, located just east of Conant at 3900 Christopher St.

This is the first time the city has had a permanent site - something city officials and commumembers have sought for a number of vears.

Even Hamtramck High School students got involved in the cause.

Before this, volunteers ran a once-a-month program out of city parking lot on Caniff.

The drop-off site is part of a new sanitation contract the city awarded to Priority Waste Holdings, which is operating across the street from the recycling bins.

The drop-off center is open every day and operates 24 hours a day.

The only downside is that currently only a limited number of types of recycling waste will be accepted: paper, cardboard, and #1 and #2 plastics.

For those wishing to get rid of bulk items, these can be dropped off on Saturdays, from noon to 3 p.m.

While both her education, and her background as an athlete in middle and high school - specifically volleyball, softball and soccer - are what kicked off her interest in biomechanics, it was her own personal struggle to get in shape that kicked off her fitness journey.

And that journey began when Zaborowski was nearing the end of her undergraduate schooling. She was struggling getting enough sleep, and felt overweight.

She gained 30 pounds during her junior year and developed poor eating habits.

"Anything that you can think of doing as an average college student finally caught up to me." Zaborowski said. "I felt out of control, and I didn't like that. I felt like a lot of things like school, work, family matters, all of the things in life that could bring you down were bringing me down.

"Those are factors that I could either make the best out of, and control what I could control, or just let it take over. I decided to control all of the aspects that I could control."

To discipline herself, Zaborowski found solace in the world of bodybuilding. She competed in her first bodybuilding show the NPC Bikini Open - in April 2018.

She took home fifth place in one competition and third place in two others. By getting into shape, Zaborowski managed to lose a staggering 25 pounds. She plans to compete again on Oct. 12.

tially, know that I'm in control of me, so whatever I do. it's not outside factors that are affecting me at that point. So, that level of discipline allowed me to show that I'm in control," she said.

Friends, family and coworkers took notice of Zaborowski's body transformation. Many of them began asking Zaborowski for advice and help, so she created an online coaching plan tailored for each person.

That inspired her to start her own fitness coaching business: EZ Coaching.

EZ Coaching is Elizabeth Zaborowski's attempt at delivering an easy, user friendly and affordable fitness coaching app for those who may not have time to regularly hit the gym, or don't know where to start as a beginner.

The app is one-on-one between Zaborowski and her client, with a threemonth commitment - although that commitment can be extended at any time, if necessary -where she personally crafts a training and diet plan created specifically for the client to fit their schedule and lifestyle.

With this app, Zaborowski hopes to not only help clients fulfill their body goals, but also to "sustain anything you have achieved, so that you understand how to do it on your own" long means for me to have after your training to-

Since she began online Zaborowski coaching, has coached 13 clients in total - and now an additional four since EZ Coaching launched.

If one is skeptical that EZ Coaching is for you, Zaborowski goes through an application process followed by a 30-45 minute coaching call - to get to know each client, learn their goals, how committed they are to these goals, and whether EZ Coaching is truly the right fit for that person, or if whether they need to seek a different alternative.

"If it were unfit for someone, I wouldn't just accept them to take the money," she said.

Since the app is still in its early stages of development, the best way to inquire about EZ Coaching is either by emailing ezcoachinginfo@gmail, or contact her through her @elimzab Instagram.

"Soon, there will just be a landing (website) that I plan to have out," she said.

"I'm hoping – and it's in the works - to have an eight-week training program e-book for anyone that doesn't want one-onone coaching.

"It'd be something you just purchase and it's yours forever, and you do it on your own time, your own pace; however you want to get you where you need to be. Hopefully, that'll be out by Sep-

Summer in the city

School may be out for the summer but that doesn't mean students stop learning.

To help nurture your reading skills and also have some fun, the Hamtramck Public Library is the place to hang out.

The library's summer ticket: the annual Summer Reading Program has already begun, on June 24. As with the ESL café, the reading program get-togethers also run on Mondays, but in the afternoons from 2 to 4 p.m., through Aug. 5. The program is targeted at grades 6 and up.

They promise guest speakers, workshops, and some hands-on events.

Adults and teens can also fill their time – and beat the heat - while they watch movies on Tuesdays at 4 p.m. beginning July 2, and continuing through Aug. 27. These screenings are also free, and light refreshments will served.

Also, a club for those grades 6 and up who are interested in Anime and (animated Manga movies/tv shows and graphic novels in a distinct style that originated in Japan), began June 27, and will run on Thursdays from 5 to 7

The library is located at 2360 Caniff.

Zussman Park turned into Soulville last Thursday evening.

The Detroit Social Club kicked off this year's Music in the Park series.

The band delved into groovy soul instrumentals, Chicago blues and Detroit funk. This, kids, was the real stuff, and if you missed it, well, maybe next time.

Next up is Hamtramck's favorite party dude, the one - and we think the only - Danny D.

He hits the stage, er, patch of concrete, on July 25, at 7 p.m.

Zussman Park, for those who are new to the city, is located in front of city hall.

Ask Uncle Stan

By Stanislaw Zwariowany

(Editor's note: "Ask Uncle Stan" is a semiweekly column meant to tickle vour funny bone. We suspect the questions and answers are, ah, pure whimsy.)

Dear Uncle Stan.

I moved to Hamtramck last fall from Grand Rapids with my wife. One of the things we noticed was Hamtramck's main street isn't named Main Street like most normal American cities.

Instead, it is named Joseph Campau. We wondered who was Joseph Campau? Can you help us out Uncle Stan?

Sincerely, Baffled from Grand Rapids

Dear Baffled,

Nobody knows who Joseph Campau was. He has been lost to the ages, and some suspect he was a fictional character, like some suspect your Uncle Stan is.

He also had a plainlooking daughter, and a middle daughter who was not any kind of looking at all. In fact, it is said a body could skim the ugly off the river, downstream, after she bathed.

Old Man Trow owned the only bridge across the Caniff. This didn't matter most of the year when it was bone dry, but in the spring, the river ran fast and wild.

He often grumbled about having to put a chair out in the street for folks to sit upon, but that didn't mean they got across his bridge for free.

The old man, now 112 years old, resolved he would retire to Florida, and give the bridge to the first man to marry one of his daughters.

That man turned out to be Jim Pulaski, the blind house painter.

Jim made repairs to the bridge - despite being blind - but it later became obsolete when the river dried up.

No one knows exactly where the bridge was, but it's suspected it is where the library is now. Over the years Trow's Bridge was slurred into Trowbridge.

And that, my confused friend, is how Trowbridge Street got its name.

Recently, our City Life Walter columnist, Wasacz, wrote about a joint city and school pilot project to have these innovative designs installed at key crosswalks - especially those near schools.

Other cities in the U.S. and Europe have reported positive experiences with them as a way to slow down speeding drivers.

Of course, there are critics of that, as well. Some argue that drivers will just ignore the stop signs and run them.

People do run stop signs, but in doing so they risk a hefty traffic driving record, which will then lead to higher insurance costs for them.

City Hall Insider ... What is our City Council up to these days? We have the highlights of the latest council meeting.

By Charles Sercombe

The city council met on April 9, and all councilmembers, except Councilmember Abu Musa, were present.

During public comment, Carrie Beth Lasley suggested hiring a permanent city attorney, instead of contracting out the service as a way to save money.

An Evaline St. resident complained about a washout in his alley. He said water is coming from under the pavement, and is shifting his garage. He said he has complained about this to the city for a couple of years, but nothing has been done.

"What does it take to get something done?" the man said.

Councilmember Perrotta said he's "very upset" the city didn't follow-up.

Robert Zwolak suggested the city should set aside money to make sure it gets an accurate count in the upcoming 2020 Census. He later complained that the Downtown Development Authority needs to start spending money on improvements. He also suggested expanding the DDA district, which now just entails all of Jos. Campau.

A man said he is having problems with city code inspectors, who keep finding things that need improvement at rental dwelling.

He said there is a "double-standard in city hall," but did not specify what he meant by that.

City Manager Kathy Angerer said the city was successful in winning a $293,909 grant from the Michigan Department of Treasury. The grant will be used to purchase new radios for police cars.

In a budget update, Angerer said the city is spending money only on essential items, in order to curtail deficit spending.

For every $100 spent in locally owned business, $68 returns to the community

Baptist youths perform community service in Hamtramck

By Charles Sercombe

Saying you are vacationing in Detroit used to be a joke.

But it was no laughing matter for a group of about 20 Indiana youths, who spent a week here in Hamtramck doing community service.

They are part of a Baptist church network, and spent most of their time making improvements in Veterans Park under the guidance of Pastor Jay Searcy of Grace Baptist Church on Caniff.

They also got a daylong tour of Detroit.

Last Thursday, they offered free car washes in the city parking lot at Caniff and McDougall. There was no shortage of takers, with cars lining up in the lot.
