Calling on volunteers for winter

Everyone loves a good neighbor.

And the City of Hamtramck is looking for volunteers to help out with some winter duties for those in need.

We'll let Max Gilginas, Hamtramck Community Involvement Coordinator, explain:

"It's been quite a year in our little town. With the help of the City of Hamtramck, The Rotary Club of Detroit, and our dedicated volunteers, the Every Neighbor program aided 25 households in keeping up to code this summer, doubling our previous summer.

"We are now shifting to winter, and to caring for our neighbors who are unable to keep their walkways free of snow and ice. This means keeping their sidewalks and cars cleaned, shoveled and salted, and it takes a lot of coordination and volunteer energy.

"We are seeking volunteers and donations, and hope you can find a few hours or dollars to make a difference. Salt, shovels, snacks, rewards for volunteers, and businesses that will allow our volunteers to warm up are also very much needed and can be donated directly. All benefits go directly to Hamtramck Mutual Aid and this program.

"If you need help, please don't hesitate to contact us. In order to reach as many of those in need as possible, we limit this to owner occupied

Restoring a city treasure: 'Hamtramck Disneyland,' piece by piece

By Sean Bieri
Special to The Review

When Dmytro Szylak passed away in 2015, at the age of 92, he left behind an amazing creative legacy in the form of the sprawling, towering, spinning, rattling, light-span-gled spectacle he built between the two garages in his backyard on Klinger, something he called "Hamtramck Disneyland."

Mr. Szylak, a Ukrainian immigrant who came to the States after World War II and who worked for General Motors for 30 years, started work on Hamtramck Disneyland around 1990.

The installation became a riot of found objects – fan blades, rocking horses, thrift store paintings, mannequins, and lawn ornaments – as well as hand-built carousels, whirligigs, marching soldiers and more, all adorned with Christmas lights.

Miniature models of a helicopter, a missile platform, and the Concorde airliner are docked in the yard, and a six-foot windmill animates mechanical figurines on its reverse side when it spins in the breeze.

Hamtramck Disneyland eventually became a renowned work of "folk art," the subject of magazine and newspaper articles as well as a documentary short film, and a tourist attraction that has drawn thousands of people to Hamtramck from around the world.

But, when he died, Mr. Szylak also left behind a question: in the absence of its creator, what would become of this unique artwork? There were fears his creation would simply be scrapped, and the two houses sold off.

However, thanks to the efforts of a group of local artists and concerned residents, Hatch Art – a local arts organization formed in 2006 by Chris Schneider and a handful of like-minded artists (myself included) – was able to acquire the two lots, and begin the work of restoring the site.

Hatch Art had previously rehabbed the abandoned Hamtramck police station on Evaline, converting it into an arts space featuring a gallery, workshop, photographic darkroom, and classroom, with artists' studios in the former office cubicles upstairs. With that experience under our belts, we felt ready to take on the challenge of preserving Hamtramck Disneyland (we call it "HDL" for short).

There were, actually, multiple challenges.

First, since we planned on renting out the four units on the property to help with upkeep of the site, both houses needed extensive work to get them up to code. (Homeowners will perhaps not be surprised to hear that this is an ongoing project.)

Likewise, the two garages, which had served as supports for much of the artwork as well as workshop and storage space for Mr. Szylak, were sagging badly and required a lot of effort in order to shore up the roofs and get both buildings rewired.

Then there was the artwork itself. Mr. Szylak had worked on Hamtramck Disneyland well into his later years, climbing up onto tall ladders to tinker with some toy or light fixture at an age when even younger folks would maybe rather stick to their recliners.

But the elements had

Hamtramck Public Schools now has more than one financial blow to deal with.

Not only does the district have to grapple with the loss of $750,000 a year for building maintenance from the consistent defeat of a school millage renewal, but also less money due to the loss of students enrolled.

According to the district, there are about 109 fewer students enrolled in the schools compared to last year – which translates to a loss of about $9,600 per student of state financial support.

That will amount to a financial hit of a little over $1 million.

According to the district's head count, there are 2,953 students enrolled this year compared to 3,062 last year, which is according to state figures.

It is unknown, at this point, what the district plans to do to beef up enrollment for next year. Unlike in previous years, there was little effort by the district to attract students this school year.

The Board of Education did not meet in November, and school Superintendent Jaleelah Ahmed has not responded to emails from The Review.

The board will be meeting this month on Dec. 13.

The district suffered a financial blow this year when voters twice overwhelmingly rejected a 3-mill tax renewal for district maintenance costs.

The district can continue to seek voter approval for the millage renewal, which would last for 10 years, but it appears there is little chance voters will be swayed, at least in the near future.

While Superintendent Ahmed did not respond to requests for comment by The Review, she did post a letter on the subject in the taken a toll on the site by the time Hatch took over. Aside from damage and wear sustained by the myriad objects on the structure, much of the lumber that was supporting the whirligigs and rocking horses and such had succumbed to weather and rot.

Some sections were being held up only by a few cables and rods; cut a wire, and a whole section might slough off onto the ground.

The art site’s infrastructure, never very easy or safe to access even in its heyday, was in danger of falling down, either during a storm or just randomly over time. The decision was made to dismantle this infrastructure, after saving as many of the distinctive arches and peaks

Mr. Szylak had designed as possible.

In its place, we’ve built a new structure, designed to be a platform that can act as both a base for the many whimsical objects the site is known for, and as a safe place to stand on and work for those installing them.

The platform has a stepped-back design to make its upper sections visible from the alley, and to keep the art from encroaching on the power lines that run along the alley.

Now that this new central structure is nearly complete, the next phase will be repopulating the site with the wonderful clutter it’s famous for.

We’ve been making sure to put as many fun art objects on display as we can during the construction phase, so there’ll always be something cool for visitors to see, and to let folks know the site is still alive and kicking. Thanks to the help of many contributors – from professional, aspiring, and hobbyist artists, to neighborhood kids and everyday folks – there are lots of colorfully painted horses and cut-out marching figures to greet the many local and international tourists who still stop by the site every week.

The helicopter has been recently repainted and the windmill put into working order, and there are new novelties to see, like a PVC pipe “rocket” on a launch pad and a gallery of strange found artworks on the outside garage walls.

In the months and years to come (because this is going to be a long-haul project) Hatch will need the contributions of many hands and imaginations to restore “HDL” to a state of chaotic beauty. Hamtramck Disneyland began as one man’s amazing vision.

Now, it’s our hope that it will become a community effort that will keep Mr. Szylak’s creative spirit alive while reflecting the many voices of Hamtramck and its visitors.

(If you’d like to help with our efforts, you can make a monetary contribution by visiting www.gofundme.com and searching for Hamtramck Disneyland to find our ongoing fundraiser. To contribute your talent and creativity, contact Sean Bieri at hdl.sean@hatchart.org.)

Crime Watch: Shooting on Caniff presents few clues

By Charles Sercombe
Crime was on the upswing this past week in Hamtramck.
The most notable incident was a shooting that happened early Friday morning on Caniff near the public library.
According to sources, almost 30 shots were fired at a few houses and, also, a car.
Surprisingly, there were no injuries and, at this point, little information is known about who did the shooting – or the motive for it.
On social media, there was criticism, by some, about the lack of information released by the city.
The Review reached out to Police Chief Anne Moise for an explanation.
“This matter is still under investigation, but we did receive reports of property damage that were alleged to have been caused by an unknown person, or persons, firing multiple rounds in the area on Caniff near Fleming,” Moise said.
“We strongly suggest that anyone that may have information on this event, please contact Hamtramck Police Department.
“In addition, this incident was not reported immediately, so (in the future) the public is requested to contact police immediately if they hear or see anything suspicious, especially events of shots fired.”
In another incident last week, an elderly woman, walking in the intersection of Yemans and Brombach, was struck and killed by a driver.
According to sources, the driver said he did not see the woman. He remained at the scene. The driver has not been arrested, and it is undetermined whether he will be facing future charges.
The police department did not release the woman's name.
Three years ago, Hamtramck was awarded a small state grant to beef up police patrols in an effort to enforce pedestrian safety measures.
At that time, the time the city was averaging about three pedestrian injuries from vehicles per year.
A number of years ago, a state insurance study ranked the intersection of Holbrook and Jos. Campau as one of the worst in the state for pedestrians.
The main cause for this is the distance from one corner to the other.
In a related matter, the number of reported incidents of reckless driving has increased in recent weeks, with last week being no exception. Most of the reports involve drivers on Gallagher, south of Holbrook.
In other recent local crime news, a number of businesses on Jos. Campau, Caniff and Conant have all reported break-ins.

Student decline will be costly to HPS district's Facebook page.

She said, in part:
“Moving forward, we remain dedicated to providing the best educational experience and opportunities for our students. We will continue to seek solutions, to adapt, and to overcome challenges with the same resolve we've always had. Your feedback, involvement, and advocacy for our schools are critical as we navigate the path ahead. ...
“Let's view this not as a setback, but as a stepping stone to engage in deeper conversations and to explore new avenues for progress.”

Nominations Encouraged for Michigan Lottery’s Excellence in Education Awards to Honor Outstanding Educators

The Michigan Lottery is celebrating 10 years of recognizing outstanding educators with the 2023-24 Excellence in Education awards. During the program’s 10 years, the Michigan Lottery has recognized more than 300 public-school educators across Michigan and highlighted the impact they have in their respective communities.

Nominations are currently open, and parents, students, school staff members, and others are encouraged to nominate outstanding public-school educators for awards. All public-school employees may be nominated for the awards, which recognize educators who go “above and beyond” to make a difference in the lives of children. To nominate a public-school educator, go to <https://www.michigan-lottery.com/excellencein-education>.

“Public-school educators play a critical role in our students’ lives by serving as role models, offering encouragement and motivation, and teaching critical skills that prepare Michigan’s students for future success,” said Acting Lottery Commissioner, Jessica Weare. “The Lottery’s Excellence in Education awards shine a light on dedicated educators who go above and beyond for their students and inspire them to reach their full potential.”

The Michigan Lottery established the Excellence in Education awards in 2014 to recognize outstanding public-school educators across the state during the school year.

One outstanding educator will be selected each week and will receive a $2,000 cash prize. At the end of the school year, one of these weekly award winners will be selected to receive the Lottery’s Educator of the Year award and will receive a $10,000 cash prize.

Winners of the weekly award are featured in a news segment on the Lottery’s media partner stations: WXYZ-TV in Detroit, FOX 17 in Grand Rapids, FOX 47 in Lansing, WNEM-TV in Saginaw, and WWTW-TV in Traverse City.

The winner of the 2023 Educator of the Year award was Kathryn Kluzak, a kindergarten teacher at Robert L. Green Elementary in East Lansing.

Hundreds of educators were nominated during the 2022-23 school year, which was the ninth year of the Excellence in Education awards program. Thirty-four of these nominees, including Kluzak, were selected to win a weekly award.

Previous winners of the Educator of the Year award:

2022 – Spencer Vanderheide, a high school teacher with Kenowa Hills High School in Grand Rapids.

2021 – Janice Smith, a school social worker at Fisher Magnet Lower Academy in Detroit.

2020 – Megan Sidge, an Autism Spectrum Disorder teacher at Hickory Woods Elementary in Walled Lake.

2019 – Stewart Kieliszewski, an Earth science, biology, mechatronics, and media teacher for eighth through 12 graders at the Uby Community Schools.

2018 – Kerri Moccio, a first-grade literacy intervention specialist at Bedford Elementary School in Dearborn Heights.

2017 – Linda Holzwarth, a social studies teacher at Portage West Middle School in Portage.

2016 – Daniel Carr, a Spanish and sports marketing teacher at Waverly High School in Lansing.

2015 – Michael Craig, a special education teacher at the Charles Drew Transition Center in Detroit.

Excellence In Education award nominees should demonstrate the following qualities:

Excellence – Their work consistently helps students and/or their schools or school districts advance to higher levels of academic achievement.

Dedication – They consistently go above and beyond expectations to help students succeed.

Inspiration – Their work inspires others around them to exceed expectations either academically or professionally.

Leadership – They demonstrate clear leadership skills in their positions with their school or school districts.

Effectiveness – The nominee’s work has clear and positive results on the educational advancement of students within the school or school district.
